Plan your Find Eye Doctor Exam Join our community and receive newsletters and offers Welcome to our selection of the best animated music videos of all time. The idea of a music video is to generate publicity; to give more time to air artists in front of a selected demographic group in order to raise awareness and sales. Along with the band's logos, music videos can provide musicians with a compelling visual element. MTV Generation saw the creation of many animated videos, but as technology became more accessible and the platforms available for media viewing grew, the possibilities of animation in music videos increased. The list below has been built to show a wide range of animated music video styles. Not all of them are strictly animations (in the cartoon sense) - there's also a bit of 3D art, lo-fi, hand-drawn, pixel art and so on. And they're not in any particular order... If it inspires you to make your own short film, Want to check out our tips on how to create an animated video and our guide to 12 principles of Disney animation.01. Rainbow Kitten Surprise - It's Called: FreefallReleased: 2019Remed: Anthony Francisco SchepperdDon't be fooled by the band's name or bright colors in the preview for this animated music video: it's not remotely adorable and doesn't contain a single Rainbow Kitten Surprise (boo). However, it is a fabulous little animated short that fits perfectly into the song. Both animated and directed by Anthony Francisco Schepperd, it begins dark, with a build-up to the execution before heading full psychedelic freak-out towards the end. Released: 2019Depare: Dan HettThe Daphne & Celeste regime – best known for catchy, bratty singles like Ooh Stick You! and U.G.L.Y., and for getting a bottled furious crowd at the 2000 Reading Festival – has been one of our favorite pop things in recent years. Orchestrated by ace producer Max Tundra, it's resulted in one wonderfully bonkers album - Daphne & Celeste Save the World, released last year - and most recently this video, directed by Dan Hett. It's re-recording one of the best tracks from the album, Sunny Day, in Japanese, so naturally the video restores the duo as anime characters and puts them in an imaginary - and excellent-looking - arcade dance game. And why not?03. Claypool Lennon Delirium - Blood and Rockets: Movement I, Saga of Jack Parsons – Movement II, Too the MoonReleased: 2019Recombination primus' Les Claypool and Sean Lennon, son of John, in psychedelic prog rock band is quite an interesting prospect from the beginning. And this video for Claypool Lennon Delirium, directed by Rich Ragsdale, seals the deal for us. The song sounds a lot like the Beatles might have if they had managed to stay until the early 1970s, and looks strongly inspired by Terry Gilliam's animation for Monty Python's Flying Circus, all rough-and-ready cutouts with lots of surrealism. Fab.04. John Grant - He's Got His Mother's HipsReleased: 2018Routed. Casey Redmond and Ewan Jones MorrisIceland-based singer-songwriter John Grant can generally be relied upon to deliver a great melody, and he has his mother's hips being the top example: a pounding record wry electroclash, complete with dazzling animated video. It's the work of Cardiff animators Casey and Ewan, who have tied up another 11 animators to deliver goods, each in their own way. The end result is a confusing, lightning-paced mash-up, depicting Grant in all kinds of cartoon styles; it's often reminiscent of peter gabriel's classic sledgehammer video (see page 3 of this post), and nothing worse for it.05. Aphex Twin - T69 CollapseReleased: 2019Routed: Nicky SmithWatch with Caution (see below)! Richard D. James' new stuff wasn't exactly the main event until he reappeared after an eight-year absence in 2014 with Syro. However, its EP 2018 managed to grab its fair share of attention, thanks in part to a poster campaign that saw posters with the Aphex Twin logo appearing in cities around the world, but also because of this video for the title track, T69 Collapse.Created by James' regular visual collaborator, Weirdoore, it's a hallucinogenic trip that starts strange and glitches and quickly increases complexity and intensity. T69 Collapse was originally scheduled to appear on Adult Swim, but its broadcast was cancelled after it failed Harding's test for photosensitive epilepsy. 06. Rick and Morty x Run the Jewels - Oh MamaReleased: 2018This: Juan Meza-LeónThis nothing as beautiful as getting an unexpected little piece of Rick and Morty and having it in the form of a Run the Jewels video is a great bonus. Directed by Juan Meza-León - who, like working as a screenplay artist on the show, was the director for three of the best episodes in its third season - it's a typically dark and brutal mini-Rickventure that it will take a few good watches for you to unpick exactly what's going on.07 Flying Lotus - Post RequisiteReleased: 2017Reached: Winston HackingYes not entirely safe to work with, if we're honest, this video for Flying Lotus' Post Requisite reminds us of the work of punk collage artist Winston Smith, best known for his work with the Dead Kennedys. Interestingly, the Flying Lotus video was directed by Winston Hacking; We don't think they're related. It's a challenging piece of animated cut-up art packed with disturbing images and packed with little details that you'll want to freeze-frame, so you can check if you've really seen what you thought you've just seen, then immediately regret doing so.08. Taylor Swift - Look What You Made Me Do (Lyric Video)Released: 2017Routed: ODDTaylor Swift marked the beginning of her musical return with this animated video created by ODD. As for his style, it seems influenced by the thriller and horror title sequence - is there a hint of Kiss Kiss Bang Bang about it, or is it just us? Featuring images of snakes that were all over Swift's social media profiles at the time, this video continues a long tradition of listeners indulging in rampant speculation about who the pop phenomenon is referring to.09. The Killers - Miss Atomic BombReleased: 2012Reaumed by: Warren FuDirector Warren Fu previously worked with the band on their video for the single Runaways, and returned to take charge of this, their second single. This animated music video effortlessly combines media animation and stunning live action footage to bring to life a heartbreaking love story. Josh Goldstein worked as a producer, with Jeff Pantaleo as executive producer and Shawn Kim as director of photography. Titmouse Studio was responsible for exceptional animation.10 Tame Impala - Feels Like We Just Go BackwardsReleased: 2012Routed: Becky Sloan, Joseph PellingYou could say that the inspiration for this animated music video lies somewhere between Peter Dinklage's Seven White Stripes' Army of the Nation. The amount of work that is clearly gone into it makes it a real work of art. Directors Becky Sloan and Joseph Pelling have a creative chemistry that always delivers the best results, whether it's used for scenography, window displays, Christmas cards or TV idents. The feeling that we are only going backwards is an absolute joy.11 Home and Dry - Ghosts Are DancingReleased: 2012 Directed by Maxime Causeret and Gilles DeschaudThis video for the Parisian art-rock band Home and Dry is a personal project made mostly using Houdini. The dramatic effect was created by filming motion capture of the band singer Laure Laffereie's face with two cameras. The effect was then created in 2D using a motion vector and 3D lighting. Unfortunately, it doesn't look like the band has released new music since 2012, but we think this video is still worth watching.12 Steven Wilson - The Raven That Refused To SingReleased: 2013Tored: Jessica Cope and Simon CartrightClearly inspired by the work of Russian animator Yurchi Norshteyn (best known for an incredible storytelling) the intense atmosphere of this imaginative and thought provoking short brings the haunting story of the song into evocative life. The relentless and simplistic animation style – based largely on the subtle movements of hand-cut paper models – fits the mood perfectly.13 Kleenr - SandmanReleased: 2012Routed: Jason Brown and Aya YamasakiCombining children's TV cartoon characters with live action, this music video follows Sandman as he works with his two umbrella helpers and reveals what's going on inside the big bag he carries. The action cleverly syncs with the lyrics of Kleenr, a collaboration of LA rappers Self Jupiter and Kenny.The beauty of this approach is that it gets you to listen carefully to the lyrics. This is something that can be difficult to achieve with music videos, as the action often distracts from the song itself.14 Smashing Pumpkins - TonightReleased: 1996 Directed by Jonathan Dayton and Valerie FarisUS husband and wife duo Jonathan Dayton and Valerie Faris directed music videos for the likes of RA, M and Paula Abdul, as well as Little Miss Sunshine. They paid tribute to silent film director Georges Méliès On a Trip to the Moon for this animated video, which is perhaps one of the greatest music videos of all time.15 Daft Punk - One More TimeReleased: 2000 Direction: Kazuhisa TakenouchiThe Daft Punk videos are quite special. And they even inspired a film by the same director, Kazuhisa Takenouchi. The anime film Interstella 5555: The Secret of the Secret 5tar System is a continuation of the stories told in daft punk one more time videos; Aerodynamic; Digital love; and harder, better, faster, stronger.16. Crips - Mirror KissersReleased: 2006Produced by: Diamond DogsUK music video directors Diamond Dogs (Ollly Williams and Philip Sansom) directed for the likes of Hoosiers, Jack and Maximo Park, and have a very different style. The video for Mirror Kissers was shot on an ordinary white background, then about 2,740 images were printed, copied and manipulated before being edited back together to create this fascinating video. The concept works very well - it's stylistically spot on. It's not your typical music video because it's stained and quite ugly, which actually complements the song it supports.17 Gorillaz - El MañanaReleased: 2006Remit: Pete CandelandPete Candeland boasts a huge repertoire of well-known tracks: BBC 2008 and 2012 Olympic marketing campaigns, Beatle rockband promos, plus numerous music videos for Gorillaz. Failed to compile a list of animated music videos and not include Gorillaz, a band that was seemingly created for this format.18 Los Campesinos! You! Me! Dance! Released: 2007Produced by: MonkMusAmerican animator MonkMus has created a number of music videos for the likes of Badly Drawn Boy, Mogwai and Death Cab for Cutie. This effort for Los Campesinos! stands out for its depiction of the party (unlike bands another video about the war). The naïve style of illustration commemorates the end of the infamous dumbo scene with racing elephants.19 London Grammar - Hey NowReleased: 2014Reaumed: Chris UllensChris Ullen's amazingly atmospheric video for London Grammar's Hey Now perfectly reflects the song. For this work, Ullen collaborated with string artist Sebastien Preschoux.In video, a ball of string and light dancing among the trees as the forest comes to life in a nighttime setting.20 REM – Male Size WreathReleased: 2008Routed: CRUSH inc Toronto-based CRUSH Inc. has teamed up with REM to produce this very effective effort. CRUSH inc. have collaborated mainly with IKEA, Budweiser and Nintendo.The many different styles in this video – from low-fi techniques, to 3D modeling to pixelated video game graphics – are interesting. Normally it wouldn't really work well together – but oddly enough, here it really does. Next page: Basement Jaxx, Coldplay, The Shins and more! More!
